The problem is that when the user clicks the new link or button, the first slide down animation doesnt work. If I hide the divs then show them, it works fine. If I hide the divs then put them back, it works fine. If I call the functions again, the first divs animation works fine, but when I click a new div link, it doesnt work. I just cant figure out what is wrong. $(document).ready(function() { $(".single_button").click(function() { $(".single_box").slideDown("slow"); }); $(".new_link").click(function() { $(".new_box").slideDown("slow"); CSS #scroll-down { width: 500px; height: 250px; background: #e1a658; } .new_box { width: 524px; height: 252px; background: #eeeff0; HTML A: The problem is you are attaching the event to each new element.
